

Recently Philip Roy redesigned our school web site to incorporate all aspects of learning and school operations of important to our school community and prospective parents/ students.

The new website was posted on 1st September 2007, and the feedback from parents has been extremely positive and complementary to our website designer, Philip Roy.

In setting up this new website Philip consulted with the school to discuss and establish key headings, content and layout. He set up a temporary website visible to the school only and we were able to view the updates and progress as Phil went about redesigning our website.

The end result is absolutely amazing. Feedback from parents and the school community highlight the ease of navigation, the up to date information and its general layout and appeal. A special feature is the phase in and out of different photographs that feature in all areas.

Philip has been highly imaginative and creative in developing this website. As a client of Philip's before I have always found him to be receptive to the clients needs and highly competent in achieving the desired outcomes as discussed. His ongoing support even after the website is up and running has always been a feature of Philip's work.

I highly recommend Philip Roy as a highly competent and creative website designer. Proof of this is in viewing our website and the many positive comments from our school community.
